THURSDAY, DECEMBER 20, 2018

Weather Center for the Apocalypse is alert to an uncertain future. It is a sculptural installation that incorporates new media, performance, and participation. It predicts changes in our environment and culture that could affect the autonomy of citizens in the event of disaster.

Amelia Marzec makes her appearance as a weather scientist who uses performance to alert the public to an uncertain future and asks the community to strengthen ties for when we will need to rely on each other. Come chat with with her and indulge in her research.
